Artist Biography

Michael Landy (b. 1963) lives and works in London. Landy studied at Goldsmiths in the late 1980s, and exhibited at the historic Freeze exhibition at London's docklands in 1988. In many of his earliest works, Landy presented a satirical view on the political and social climate of Britain. A concern with the attribution of value and ownership remain central to his practice, which spans large-scale and sometimes temporal and interactive works, to intricately detailed works on paper.

Landy's works are held in public institutions internationally, including the Tate Collection, London; the Museum of Modern Art, New York; and the Centre Pompidou, Paris.
